A family story

The Bon Coeur restaurant is the result of a Greek family's hard work. In 1974, shortly after settling in Belgium, Theodoros and Charalambos Gimnopoulos took over a small Greek coffee shop on the Place Bethléem in Saint-Gilles. They launched the idea of "ribs" which was quickly appreciated by fans of grilling.

The Bon Coeur 3, located on the Rue de Mérode, has been open since 1989. It offers a large choice of grilled plates. All dishes are homemade and typically meet Greek recipes handed down from generation to generation. The atmosphere in the restaurant is particularly familiar. No rules of conduct, no knives or forks to eat the spare ribs. Here, you eat with your hands and without any shame!

Thessaloniki, the owners' hometown

Thessaloniki is the second largest Greek city, located in the north of the country. Thessaloniki was founded by Cassander of Macedonia in 315 B.C., and named in honor of his wife, to whom he offered the city a token of his love. "Thessaloniki" was the daughter of Philip II of Macedonia and half-sister of Alexander the Great, and her name is the contraction of the words Θεσσαλών (Thessalian) and νίκη (Victory) in commemoration of the victory of the Macedonian inhabitants of Phocis with the help of Thessalians.

The White Tower is the symbol of the city. For centuries, it was part of the city walls, destroyed in 1866. When the city was taken over by the Greeks in 1912, the tower was painted white as a sign of purification, which earned her her current name.
